It's the Middle of Winter and What's a Body to Do? How About Clean & Organize Your Bathroom!

Okay, so clearly a project like that is no day of the beach. But this time of year, who wants or needs a day at the beach? Not the local ones, anyway. Unless, that is, you belong to a Polar Bear club.

Instead, why not use the extra indoor time that winter affords to do something productive and restorative around your house. You know, like cleaning and re-organizing your bathroom.

In fact, just follow these these simple tips to transform your bathroom into an easier-to-clean and maintain retreat.

1. Remove all items that somehow made their way into your bathroom but simply don't belong there. Banish dirty clothes to the laundry room, safely return jewelry to a jewelry box, shoes to the closet, and so on.

2. Throw away anything and everything that is no longer used or has expired, especially prescription or over-the-counter drugs.

3. Sort items that are used on a daily basis from all the rest. Then take what's left over and find places to store them in in drawers, your linen closet, and so on.

4. Use a green cleaner. Spray the cleaner in the shower and tub, on your cleared off countertops, and in the toilet. Let the cleaner "get to work" on those surfaces while you sweep the floors and clean the mirror. Wipe down the counters, scrub the toilet, and then the shower.

Green & Healthy Living Tips

Snack check. Snacks are OK in moderation and should consist of items like fruit, whole grains, or nuts to satisfy hunger and not cause excessive weight gain.

5. While you're at it, make a mental note of certain problems that would be better left for another day, including:

- Too little drawer space? Shelves with baskets under your sink can help solve that problem.
- Bathroom on the small side? Shelves over the toilet or on your walls can make the most of small spaces.
- Makeup, jewelry, and hair styling tools taking over the counter? Create a separate storage area elsewhere to reclaim that space.

6. Mop the floors and begin placing toiletries in their newly created spaces, keeping your most-used items within easy reach.

7. Keep a few cleaning products in the bathroom for low maintenance cleaning. Sanitizing wipes, a toilet scrubber, glass cleaner, and extra small trash bags make a great cleaning kit that fits nicely in a bucket or caddy.

It probably won't be the most fun you'll ever have, but you'll have a great feeling of accomplishment when all your work is done. What's more, if any of the problems you identify (see step 5 above) involve plumbing, Your 1 Plumber is on hand to make things right again. Even better, you'll find a coupon on page 3 of this newsletter good for a $35 savings on the bathroom plumbing service or repair of your choice.

Until next time,

Amazing Fact

According to old historical opinion, Valentine's Day is a good day to prepare eels for the purposes of magic. It was once believed that eating an eel's heart would give sight of the future.
